2009 BC Wage & Salary Survey: Focus on Selected High Opportunity Occupations

About the survey

The BC Wage & Salary Survey collected information on wages, hours of work, and skills shortages for more than one hundred of the province's most common occupations. This project was undertaken in partnership with the Ministry of Advanced Education and Labour Market Development (ALMD). Funding was made possible through the Labour Market Information initiative under the Canada-British Columbia Labour Market Agreement (LMA), which is administered for B.C. by ALMD.

The survey, conducted on behalf of BC Stats and ALMD by Statistics Canada, was completed by a sample of B.C. establishments between March 23rd and June 25th, 2009. Establishments having 10 or more employees were selected for the survey sample from Statistics Canada's Business Register. The sample was designed to target the most common jobs[1] in each of B.C.'s development regions.[2] In each of the province's three largest regions (Vancouver Island/Coast, Mainland/Southwest, and Thompson-Okanagan), 100 occupations were targeted, and in each of the five smaller regions (Kootenay, Cariboo, North Coast, Nechako, and North East), 35 occupations were targeted.

Since different occupations were targeted in each economic region, for a given occupation, estimates are typically not available for all regions. Provincial estimates were computed wherever the region(s) surveyed for that occupation accounted for the majority of the province's paid workers in that occupation at the time of the 2006 Census.

BC Wage & Salary Website

Additional information about the survey can be found on the BC Wage & Salary website: http://www.bcstats.gov.bc.ca/data/lss/labour/wage

This website allows users to generate reports for specific occupations by region. Users can search for occupations alphabetically, by keyword, by occupation code (NOC), by salary range, or by region.

The website also includes: a complete listing of occupation and region-specific data availability; additional analysis documents; the survey methodology report; and links to other useful websites.

[1] Common occupations are those that employed the largest number of persons at the time of the 2006 Census.

High opportunity occupations

The Ministry of Advanced Education and Labour Market Development has identified 22 "High Opportunity" occupations in British Columbia.[3] The 2009 BC Wage & Salary survey has provided information on 7 of these high-opportunity occupations. These occupations (and associated NOC codes) are:

NOC	Occupation Title
0911	Manufacturing Managers
1441	Administrative Clerks
2171	Information Systems Analysts and Consultants
2173	Software Engineers and Designers
2174	Computer Programmers and Interactive Media Developers
3152	Registered Nurses
4163	Business Development Officers and Marketing Researchers and Consultants

The following sections explore each of these high opportunity occupations in turn. A brief description of the occupation is provided, followed by highlights from the BC Wage & Salary Survey.[4]

Important definitions used in this report

Most frequent wage: For each occupation, employers were asked to provide the average (defined as the most often or most frequent) wage

Hiring difficulties: For each occupation, employers were asked to report whether or not they had experienced hiring difficulties, if they had recruited for that occupation in the last two years

Vacancies: For each occupation, employers were asked to report whether or not they had vacancies that had been unfilled for longer than four months

0911: Manufacturing managers

NOC Description: Manufacturing managers plan, organize, direct, control and evaluate the operations of a manufacturing establishment or of a production department within a manufacturing establishment, under the direction of a general manager or other senior manager. They are employed by manufacturing companies. [4]

Employers of manufacturing managers were surveyed in each of the province's three largest development regions (Vancouver Island/Coast, Mainland/Southwest, and Thompson/Okanagan). At the time of the 2006 Census, there were 7,980 paid workers in this occupation in B.C., and the regions surveyed accounted for 92% of these workers.

[3] More information is available at: http://www.aved.gov.bc.ca/labourmarketinfo/reports/high_opportunity.pdf
[4] The occupation codes and their descriptions used in this survey are based on the National Occupational Classification (NOC) framework, which is maintained and updated by Human Resources and Skills Development Canada (HRSDC). For detailed occupational descriptions, visit: http://www.hrsdc.gc.ca/noc

The most frequent full-time wage among manufacturing managers was $30 per hour, although it was higher in Thompson/Okanagan ($33), and lower in Vancouver Island/Coast ($27). Overall, the starting wage for manufacturing mangers was about $27 per hour, and the maximum wage was $35. As with most frequent wage rates, starting and maximum wage rates were higher in Thompson/Okanagan and lower in Vancouver Island/Coast. Virtually all manufacturing mangers were employed full-time, and worked an average of 40 hours per week. In all three regions surveyed, about 4% of employers reported difficulty hiring manufacturing managers. Overall, 9% of employers reported vacancies of over four months for this occupation, although employers in Vancouver Island/Coast were considerably more likely to report vacancies (17%).

1441: Administrative clerks

NOC Description: Administrative clerks compile, verify, record and process forms and documents, such as applications, licences, permits, contracts, registrations and requisitions, in accordance with established procedures, guidelines and schedules. They are employed throughout the private and public sectors. [4]

Employers of administrative clerks were surveyed in each of the province's three largest development regions (Vancouver Island/Coast, Mainland/Southwest, and Thompson/Okanagan). At the time of the 2006 Census, there were 12,710 paid workers in this occupation in B.C., and the regions surveyed accounted for 93% of these workers.

The most frequent full-time wage among administrative clerks was $22 per hour, although it was lower in Thompson/Okanagan ($19), and slightly higher in Vancouver Island/Coast ($23). Starting wage rates among administrative clerks averaged about $19, and were similar across the three regions surveyed. The highest paid administrative clerks earned about $27, although maximum wage rates ranged from only $20 (Thompson/Okanagan) to $31 (Vancouver Island/Coast). Approximately 7 out of every 8 administrative clerks were employed full-time, and those employed full-time worked 37.5 hours per week, on average. Fewer than 4% of employers reported difficulty hiring administrative clerks, and this proportion was consistent across regions. While just over 5% of employers reported vacancies of over four months for this occupation, this was driven by employers in Mainland/Southwest, where about 8% reported vacancies.

Region	Full-time hourly wages			Average full-time hours	% Employed full-time	% of Employers reporting:

The BC Wage & Salary survey also obtained information for part-time administrative clerks, which represented almost 14% of total employment among administrative clerks captured by the survey. Part-time employment among administrative clerks was more prevalent in Thompson/Okanagan (22%) and Vancouver Island/Coast (19%), and less common in Mainland/Southwest (10%). The most frequent wage among part-time administrative clerks was $16 per hour, about $6 an hour less than the corresponding full-time wage. The average starting wage for part-time employees in this occupation was $14, and the maximum wage was $17. Part-time administrative clerks worked, on average, 21 hours per week.

Region	Part-time hourly wages			Average part-time hours
	Starting	Most frequent	Maximum
Vancouver Island/Coast	$14.95	$18.21	$20.63	21.4

2171: Information systems analysts and consultants

NOC Description: Information systems analysts and consultants conduct research, develop and implement information systems development plans, policies and procedures, and provide advice on a wide range of information systems issues. They are employed in information technology consulting firms and in information technology units throughout the private and public sectors, or they may be self-employed. [4]

Employers of information systems analysts and consultants were surveyed in two of the province's largest development regions (Vancouver Island/Coast and Mainland/Southwest). At the time of the 2006 Census, there were 11,785 paid workers in this occupation in B.C., and the regions surveyed accounted for 94% of these workers.

The most frequent full-time wage among information systems analysts and consultants was $33 per hour, with the starting wage rate averaging $27 and the maximum wage rate averaging $40. Compared with Mainland/Southwest, the starting, most frequent, and maximum wage rates for this occupation were lower in Vancouver Island/Coast, where the most frequent wage was $29. Virtually all employment in this occupation was full-time, and full-time information systems analysts and consultants worked an average of 36.5 hours per week. Overall, 15% of employers reported hiring difficulties for this occupation, and 12% reported vacancies unfilled for longer than four months. All of the employers reporting hiring difficulties were located in Lower Mainland/Southwest, but employers in both regions reported vacancies.

2173: Software engineers and designers

NOC Description: Software engineers and designers research, design, evaluate, integrate and maintain software applications, technical environments, operating systems, embedded software, information warehouses and telecommunications software. They are employed in information technology consulting firms, information technology research and development firms, and information technology units throughout the private and public sectors, or they may be self-employed. [4]

Employers of software engineers and designers were surveyed in only one region (Mainland/Southwest). At the time of the 2006 Census, there were 5,080 paid workers in this occupation in B.C., and Mainland/Southwest accounted for 90% of these workers.

The most frequent full-time wage among software engineers and designers was $35 per hour, although wage rates ranged from $28 (starting) to $44 (maximum). All software engineers and designers were employed full-time, and worked an average of 38 hours per week. Approximately one out of six employers reported vacancies of over four months in this occupation, and about 6% reported hiring difficulties.

NOC Description: Computer programmers write, modify, integrate and test computer code for microcomputer and mainframe software applications, data processing applications, operating systems-level software and communications software. Interactive media developers write, modify, integrate and test computer code for Internet applications, computer-based training software, computer games, film, video and other interactive media. They are employed in computer software development firms, information technology consulting firms, and in information technology units throughout the private and public sectors. [4]

Employers of computer programmers and interactive media developers were surveyed in two of the province's largest development regions (Vancouver Island/Coast and Mainland/Southwest). At the time of the 2006 Census, there were 10,985 paid workers in this occupation in B.C., and the regions surveyed accounted for 94% of these workers.

The most frequent full-time wage among computer programmers and interactive media developers was $31 per hour, although the most frequent wage for this occupation was higher in Mainland/Southwest than in Vancouver Island/Coast. Among the regions surveyed, starting wage rates for this occupation ranged from $22 to $24, and maximum wage rates ranged from $41 to $45. Virtually all computer programmers and interactive media developers were employed full-time, and they worked 38.5 hours per week, on average. Overall, 29% of employers reported vacancies of over four months for this occupation, with vacancies reported by employers in both regions. Hiring difficulties, however, were only reported by employers in Mainland/Southwest (7%).

NOC Description: This unit group includes registered nurses, nurse practitioners, registered psychiatric nurses and graduates of a nursing program who are awaiting registration (graduate nurses). They provide direct nursing care to patients, deliver health education programs and provide consultative services regarding issues relevant to the practice of nursing. They are employed in a variety of settings including hospitals, nursing homes, extended care facilities, rehabilitation centres, doctors' offices, clinics, community agencies, companies and private homes, or they may be self-employed. [4]

Employers of registered nurses were surveyed in all but two of the province's development regions (Northeast and Nechako). At the time of the 2006 Census, there were 32,395 paid workers in this occupation in B.C. (making registered nurses the sixth most common occupation in the province), and the regions surveyed accounted for 98% of these workers.

The most frequent full-time wage among registered nurses was $37 per hour, but there was some regional variation in wage rates. For example, the most frequent wage rate was lower in Thompson/Okanagan ($30), and higher in Mainland/Southwest ($39). Overall, the average starting wage for full-time registered nurses was $32, and the maximum wage was $42. Registered nurses who were employed full-time worked 37 hours per week, on average. While only 6% of employers reported hiring difficulties for this occupation, 34% reported vacancies unfilled for longer than four months, and vacancies were common in all regions.

The BC Wage & Salary survey also obtained information for part-time registered nurses. Part-time employment is relatively common among registered nurses—for example, in Vancouver Island/Coast and Thompson/Okanagan, more than half of total employment among registered nurses captured by the survey was part-time. The most frequent wage among part-time registered nurses was $34 per hour, $3 per hour less than the corresponding full-time wage. The starting wage among part-time employees in this occupation was $27, and the maximum wage was $38. Part-time registered nurses worked about 13 hours per week, on average.

4163: Business development officers and marketing researchers and consultants

NOC Description: Business development officers and marketing researchers and consultants conduct research, formulate policies and manage programs to stimulate industrial and commercial business investment or tourism in urban and rural areas or to promote commercial or industrial products and services. They are employed by government departments, international organizations, marketing firms and business associations or may be self-employed.[4]

Employers of business development officers and marketing researchers and consultants were surveyed in only one region (Mainland/Southwest). At the time of the 2006 Census, there were 5,325 paid workers in this occupation in B.C., and Mainland/Southwest accounted for 79% of these workers.

The most frequent full-time wage among business development officers and marketing researches and consultants was $34 per hour. The wage range for this occupation was quite wide, with an average starting wage of $24 and a maximum wage of $35. Over 95% of business development officers and marketing researches and consultants were employed full-time, and they worked about 37 hours per week, on average. For this occupation, the employers surveyed did not report any hiring difficulties (although this may indicate that they did not recruit during the past two years) or vacancies unfilled for longer than four months.

Notes

Whenever possible we use seasonally adjusted data which removes normal seasonal variations to reveal the underlying trends in the data. Adjusted data are identified as Seasonally Adjusted or SA.

Some series subject to irregular fluctuations are presented on a three month moving average basis. All such series included in this report are also seasonally adjusted. Where space is limited these are tagged 3MMA SA.

Series not labeled as seasonally adjusted are unadjusted or raw. Some unadjusted series in this report are explicitly identified as such.
